PRAISE FOR DEMETER PRESS BOOKS

'Until our Hearts are on the Ground': Aboriginal Mothering, Oppression, Resistance and Rebirth

Edited by D. Memee Lavell-Harvard and Jeannette Corbiere Lavell

"Thought-provoking and memorable. Truly a book to be read with understanding of the Aboriginal woman's perspective and understanding their attempt to fit in two worlds as a mother. It tells of hard lessons learned and wisdom gained from generations.

—JOSEPHINE MANDAMIN, Lead Grandmother for the Mother Earth Waterwalk

Maternal Theory: Essential Readings

Edited by Andrea O'Reilly

"Motherhood studies trailblazer Andrea O'Reilly has done it again! Maternal Theory provides readers with a much-needed single anthology of the essential readings on theories of motherhood from the past three decades. Folks just discovering the field of maternal theory, and those well versed in feminist theory and theories of motherhood, will find this collection invaluable. Scholars and students alike will broaden their knowledge and their libraries with this indispensable collection of texts on mothers, mothering and motherhood. It's a must read for all, and essential for anyone teaching in the area."

—FIONA JOY GREEN, PhD., Chair, Women's and Gender Studies Department, University of Winnipeg

Mother Knows Best: Talking Back to the "Experts"

Edited by Jessica Nathanson and Laura Camille Tuley

"Mother Knows Best presents a sustained critique of the leading mothering advice literature of the past decade or so. With a cutting-edge approach and a frank, "talking back" tone, the authors make a significant contribution to the current literature on mothering."

—LAURI UMANSKY, Professor, History Department; Associate Dean, College of Arts and Sciences, Suffolk University

Mothering and Blogging: The Radical Art of the MommyBlog

Edited by May Friedman and Shana L. Calixte

"With wit and candour, this book deconstructs concepts of 'mommy' and motherhood, offering a unique set of perspectives that capture the tension between women's individual and collective personal, cultural, and political identities and experiences as lived through new technologies."

—KRISTA SCOTT-DIXON, author of Doing IT: Women Working in Information Technology

Giving Breastmilk: Body Ethics and Contemporary Breastfeeding Practice

Edited by Rhonda Shaw and Alison Bartlett

"This is an excellent book that is coherent and theoretically strong. The authorship is diverse yet highly appropriate. The book follows a logical sequence and represents an advance in the social science of breastfeeding. It is likely to be of interest to academics in the fields of anthropology, sociology and women's studies. It will also appeal to breastfeeding specialists, midwives and other health professionals working with breastfeeding women."

—FIONA DYKES, Professor of Maternal and Infant Health, Director of Maternal and Infant Nutrition and Nurture Unit (mainn), University of Central Lancashire, England
