

Mothering Canada: Interdisciplinary Voices

La maternité au Canada: voix interdisciplinaires

edited by Shawna Geissler, Lynn Loutzenhiser, Jocelyne Praud and Leesa Streifler

A multidisciplinary, bilingual anthology of mothering research in Canada that illustrates facets of Canadian mothering through different disciplinary lenses including social sciences, literature, and visual arts. The anthology confirms that issues of mothering are prevalent in the Canadian psyche, and in much need of research, communication, and change.

”A wonderfully rich collection of material on what we know and what we still need to know about mothering. Mothering Canada illustrates the power of bringing together multiple visions and multiple knowledges — empirical research, poetry, personal journeys, art, and many more — as different and complementary ways of trying to understand and of searching for meaning.”

— Caroline Andrew, Centre on Governance, University of Ottawa

Shawna Geissler teaches at Campion and Luther Colleges (English). Dr. Lynn Loutzenhiser (Psychology), Dr. Jocelyne Praud (Political Science) and Professor Leesa Streifler (Fine Arts) research and teach at the University of Regina
